the drawers of our editorial table this past week, we bauled out the "Call a Halt" editorial as it was originally written in ted to two or three discrest friends at that time who plead and protested by turns earnestness against its publication that it was laid away. Some weeks just at the d sk o'day, with the announcement that o and been brought down was to be platted into town lots, and he us in no less of excitement than earnest-ness he exclaimed: "This foolishness will yet be the ruin of us all: can't you say something that will put and end to it? I believe you are the only one that can." We then took from our drawer and read what follows, and which was substantially published either the very next morning the second morning following. Whether wise or foolish the immediate effect of the article has never been questioned. It was reproduced by the New York safe to say it effected every town boom from the Mississippi to the Pacific. The original copy reads as follows::

Wild and Buckless Specularion at the Expense of Wichita.

As nine men out of ten concede that 'the EAGLE'S criticism of the "Addition Craze," we desire again to say, and with empiasels, that wild speculation is not besiness, nor conductive of a healthy growth, or of permanency. When men abandon legitimate trade to embark in a craze of any character, the end is not far off. No work however well directed no brath, however fertile or far seeing, can are the collapse which must follow an overstrained inflation.

This state of affairs has been largely brought about by men not interested in the past or future of Wichita. There are a large number of men who were bright and observant enough to see that here was going to be built the greatest city in Kansas, it not the greatest in the west. These men, who have travaled about the world much or, at least, enough to enable them to comprehend the possibilities of our superior location, remarkable enroundings, and glorious prospects, have been and have now, simply banking on the enterprise of others, not caring for consequences, farther than for results in the shape of immediate returns. So wild and extravagant have they become that some of our more conservative business men, who were prospering in the ordinary channels of trade, have lost their heads and are ready for any folly.

The first one that catches my eye is Major Hood, by Ashland, dam by Madrid, second dam by Mambrino Champion, the dam by C. M. Clay, Jr., No. 22. What letter blood does a man want than this? He gets the Wilkes, the Clay and the Mambrino cross in this pedigree. It is ultra-fashionable No. 58; is Astra, a full sister to Bert Oliver (2:25%) This state of affairs has been targely brought

The transfers, or sales, of property aggregate from one and a half to two and a half millions of dollars daily, with several hundred lincensed real estate firms laying our new additions continuously. Lands lately worth but a few dollars per acres and devoted to the cultivation of corn and wheat, are selling by the front foot at startling flaures. A rebound is inevitable, such as will crush the Eacle's pride and dream. Some fire morning samebody will be forced to realize on his speculative holdings when no buyer will be found, which circumstance will precipitate a thousand, real tent thousand of the sequipages will have come and the Feurles of Frincess will be a curse and a byword of the disappointed. Thousands of honest people who now deem themselves wealthy will be crushed beneath cartial payment morigages which, having a thausted surplus winnings, will in the end swallow up their homes.

The Eacle can "call a half" during the next few ensuing weeks, but such a call from the Eacle might reach too far, and might do as mach harm in another direction as it onget to do good in this flut the wise, sensitie and solid business men of this city can beat this game which threatens so much trouble simply by unitedly and unanimosity. any folly.
